

Player Profile – Ancer Haggerty

I started playing a lot of bridge just a couple of years ago, after retiring from the federal bench. I could have retired much earlier, and might have started bridge much earlier, too, had I been able to pursue my original professional dream of being a linebacker in the NFL. But that didn't work out, and probably for the better.

I am a lifelong Portlander and football fan. I spent my early years in the Woodlawn neighborhood, and at one time lived just a block from Cowboys great Mel Renfro. He was a childhood pal two years my senior and future star at Jefferson High School. I joined the team as a freshman and played three seasons. I wasn't there in time to make the 1958 squad, when Renfro was one of the 10 out of 11 starting players who went on to play college ball, but our team did win the city title.

Like Renfro, I also played for the Ducks, and as a freshman I competed on the school's wrestling team. Between football and schoolwork I was also busy with Marine Infantry Officer Training, which I joined to ensure I could finish college before serving. I did go to Vietnam, in 1968, but was there just two weeks when a major injury sent me home and ended any hope I had of playing professional football.

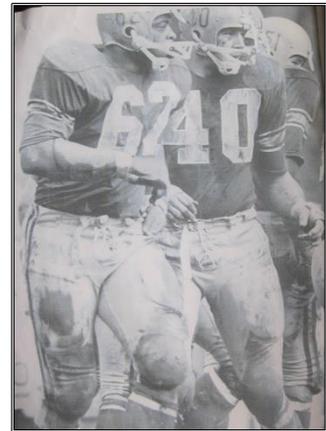

That's when I got to thinking seriously about a law career. At U of O, head coach Len Casanova had urged me in that direction, and during officers' training I had become intrigued with the Military Code of Justice. So when I finished rehab at the V.A. I used funds from the program to attend law school, UC Hastings, in San Francisco. In 1973, I began practicing in Portland, first as a public defender for Metropolitan Public Defender Services, and then later as a litigator with Schwabe, Williamson & Wyatt.

In 1988, married and with two young daughters and a stepson, I decided to trade in the long hours and travel of a trial attorney for a seat on the Multnomah County District Court. In 1990, I presided over one of the court's most noted cases, a civil suit against Tom Metzger, a California-based white supremacist, for his role in a local murder. In 1994, I was appointed to the U.S. District Court of Oregon, where I spent 21 years and retired as senior judge.

Over the course of my career I stayed connected to football by coaching Pop Warner for five different teams of kids 8 to 13 years old. As a fan I was and always will be ferociously loyal to the Ducks, and depending on who's winning I follow the Cowboys, Seahawks, and 49ers.

During my working years I also played a lot of cards – whist, pitch, hearts, and some bridge, but mostly at the party level. I tend to prefer more active pastimes, and still play racquetball three times a week with Mike Schunk, whom I first got to know in the Marines. We started with handball, during training in Quantico, Virginia, and switched to racquetball after returning to Portland and beginning our respective law practices – I on defense and he as a prosecutor, later one of the county's longest-serving district attorneys. I'm 72 and he's 74, but we compete on the court as fiercely as we once did in the courtroom.

Duplicate bridge began to capture my interest soon after my retirement, when I ran into a woman who had played long ago at games my mom would host at home. That's where as a high schooler I learned the basics playing as a fill-in. My mom's friend and I began an occasional game; then I took lessons at the Portland Bridge Club and pretty much got hooked. Soon after, I began playing frequently with my regular partner, Clariner Boston, at clubs and tournaments. I enjoy winning masterpoints, but bridge may be the one pursuit in my life that is less about competing and more about just having fun.

Ducks, circa 1965, with teammate Tim Casey (40)

SCHEDULE

OBTY publishes on the 1st of February, April, June, August, October, and December. Submissions for a given issue are due by the 20th of the previous month.

FROM YOUR UNIT BOARD

At our February meeting, the Unit 487 Board of Directors reported the publication and distribution of 500 paper rosters and soon-to-be an online version that will be updated regularly. As part of updates, we agreed to ask club owners to inform the unit secretary of player deaths.

We were pleased to note that parking at the Montgomery Park winter sectional was manageable, thanks partly to having a board member or other volunteer directing cars to an overflow lot. Overall attendance was a big plus, 249½ tables, up from 176 at last year's winter sectional, although KO turnout was down. We also agreed to continue Bracketed Swiss Teams, which we introduced to great reception at the winter sectional, in sectionals going forward.

Our program at Catlin Gabel is doing well, and we are looking into starting a similar, after-school program at Irvington. Our next board meeting will take place Wed. Apr. 19, 3:00 p.m., at the Portland Bridge Club. Everyone is invited, and your questions and feedback are welcome.

MEMBER MILESTONES

Who knew you could pan for gold in the Columbia? A win for his team in the Oregon Trail Regional Columbia River KOs earned Jack Sands the remaining points he needed to become a Gold Life Master. Credit also goes to Jack's longtime partner Howie Smith and their teammates Mike & Lynne Arnett.

On Feb. 18, the Ace of Clubs hosted 22 tables of 487 players who gathered with friends and family of Betty Rossmann to play some cards, sip some champagne, and raise a toast to Betty on her 100th birthday. Just another number? Perhaps like the one that measures her masterpoint accomplishments: averaging more than 120 points per year every year of her life so far. Many happy returns, Betty.

COMING EVENTS

April 8-9: Vancouver Senior Sectional, Washington School for the Deaf
April 21-23: Seaside Spring Sectional, Seaside Convention Center
May 8-14: STaC, Ace of Clubs, Portland Bridge Club, Vancouver Bridge Club
June 9-11: Portland Spring KO Sectional, Montgomery Park

On Mar. 4, the Ace of Clubs hosted 23 tables for the Oscar Wallace Trophy Game, an annual event at the club to honor the legendary bridge player, director, and teacher. This year, the gathering also served as the club's much-postponed-for-snow holiday celebration and a send-off for District 20 NAP qualifiers headed to the Finals in Kansas City.

On Mar. 5, the Portland Bridge Club celebrated the culmination of two years in business under the ownership of Linda Wiener and Dave Brower. Attendees enjoyed a feast at noon, bridge at 17 tables of Open Pairs and 5 tables of 49ers, the presentation of honors to select players for attendance and masterpoints won at weekly games, and a whole lot of fun.
